Case Interviews For Beginners By Stephen Pidgeon

Need to learn case interviews but don't know where to start? This book is designed to get you up and running. By using scripted examples and interviews with experienced recruiters it gives readers an understanding of what a case actually is, and how they can start to prepare. Case interviews are used extensively by most major recruiters, including McKinsey, Bain, BCG, Amazon, Google and many more, and this book contains interviews with recruiters from all of the above companies. The author, Stephen Pidgeon, is a former McKinsey consultant and interviewer who now works as a career coach at the Tuck School of Business. He coaches hundreds of candidates every year, many of whom are successful in their goal of landing their dream job. He is also the author of 'How to get a job in consulting'.

Editorial Review

From the Author
As a former McKinsey interviewer and career coach at the Tuck School of Business, I work with a great many students who are going through case interviews, whether for consulting jobs or for many other top companies.

For all of these candidates who have found out that they will have a case interview, their first question is always "where do I start?"

Often they have already bought one of the other popular (and excellent) case interview books, but they don't quite have a feel for what a case is or how they should get stuck into preparation.

This book is designed to be that starting point. Its first goal is to give a very clear example of actually what a case interview is. Once that is well understood, we then move onto learning about why interviewers use cases, what they are looking for, and accordingly what candidates should have in mind as they run through their own case prep.

My goal is that this book will be a useful add-on to the classic case books, and will be a valuable starting point.

About the Author
Stephen Pidgeon is a former McKinsey consultant and is currently Associate Director in the Career Development Office at the Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth College, which is consistently ranked amongst the World's top Business Schools.

In his role at Tuck, Stephen helps students get internships and full time positions in all of the World's top consulting companies; including McKinsey & Company, Bain & Company, The Boston Consulting Group, Deloitte Consulting, and many more.

Each year, Stephen counsels more than a hundred students, helping them navigate the on-campus recruiting process, and coaching them to succeed in consulting case and experience interviews.
In addition, Stephen is one of the most sought-after interview coaches on Evisors.com, where he coaches students from around the World (including undergrad, MBA and other advanced degrees) and experienced hires.

Prior to working at Tuck, Stephen was an Engagement Manager at McKinsey & Company, based in the London office, during which time he served top leaders of many global organizations. He was particularly active as an interviewer, attending company presentations on campuses, mentoring candidates, and taking part in countless interviews and decision meetings.

Stephen received his MBA from the Tuck School of Business in 2007, where he successfully navigated the consulting recruiting process, receiving offers from two of the top consulting firms. He spent his summer internship with McKinsey & Company.

Stephen lives in Vermont with his wife and two daughters, and when he is not counseling students spends his time renovating his house or working in his backyard.
